How to start 'mminfo' & 'nsrinfo' at the NetWorker client with a standard user account

Since the NetWorker client software package has been split into

- the 'normal' client software                      and
- the extended client software

the 'extended' commands are not part of the NetWorker standard client software any longer - especially these two commands are missing.

To solve the issue, you might of course simply install the Extended Client software package - if you are allowed to do this at all.

Another possibility is to copy these binaries from the NetWorker server to your NetWorker client. Once again - you might not have the proper rights to do that. However, you might convince your backup admin to provide you these files as they will not be able to manipulate the index information at all.

Please keep in mind that - to run `nsrinfo` for a certain client - you also will need the appropriate 'remote access rights'.
